Nice valley and the Temples!

06 Aug 2019

Well, it's a bit overcrowded mostly all of time. But very early morning is the best time. High enough fee for every visitor. You could take taxi or tour, but also possible to rent bike or e-scooter and go in your own (most preferable way). Even if you not a Lara, it's easy to spend from 2 to 5 days for to go here and there, make some photos and be happy :)

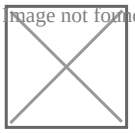

Incredible scene of ancient temples

19 May 2019

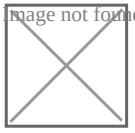

Unlike any other place that I have visited, this town is surrounded by hundreds of temples, small to gargantum, some on their own, some in large groupings of ten or more, not in tended gardens, but scattered by the road side, deep into fields and brush, but because of the flat landscape, generally easily visible. One temple on its own might not attract that much interest, but the sheer number and variety are astounding. The exteriors may be a little weathered, but generally, the interiors, and their Buddhass, are well kept. If you are travellin north to south in Burma, you should stop in Bagan at least for one day.

Bagan is one of my favorite places in the world, the huge extension of temples and pagodas are amazing, we went to several monasteries where monks meditate under the cave. The energy of the territory is special, I have never felt a peace like this before , it will take your breath away!We stayed in the Aureum Palace , the hotel is outstanding and beautiful!,

Almost Temple all over the ground

20 Nov 2018

Almost Temple all over the ground The golden colour is beautiful. In the sun light Pagoda are so brilliant. It can be very hot a day time but you can also watch it a evening time when the temperature decrease a little bit. But views are more than amazing!!! Must see and visit.It is a also a magnetic point for all the local people at night time.Very quite but crowd, a lot of sellers intensively offering some staff. Can be easy to access by taking E Bike and it is very cheap-able rate.

Must in your life.

If you like heritage then don't miss Bagan. I explored it in June to make it with less tourists (even not many local visitors) so that I can explore without being rush. The temples offered different style, atmosphere. Make sure you visit the group of small temples as they offered the different stories.
